Architecture, Communication, Urban Development

As first generation architects and planners dealing with post socialistic society change, leisure oriented cities and event oriented architecture we are keen on employing our crafts and skills in new and unknown ways. The shrinking phenomena challenge us to broaden the intellectual approach how to deal with urban and domestic space.

NoHotel

Unused areas are transformed into accommodations for a limited time, by means of the Nohotel system, this environment then functions as an element in the structure of new cultural and social connections. www.nohotel.info

pog.design

pog.design develops accessories and furniture pieces by using ordinary, technical practical plastic manufactures of mass production. pog.design detects their functional qualities and translates them into new contexts: into the world of fashion and interior. The aesthetic character of the products is evoked by the clash of design and non-design, of mass product and individual item, by functional element and ornament. Pog.design is a full-service company for industrial and interior design concept and development
